

waiters, French, German, Belgian, Californian, Mexican, Mississippian, cops, criminals, handsome, pretty, gay, straight, Dodger fans, Giant fans, 49er fans — were regulars there also. Plus, my good friend Sheila was working at Blooms at the time and put in a good word with the owner. That's how I decided, nay, how I evolved, into a becom-

N: Having a gun to my back was kind of crazy.

GR: If you could have your dream job anywhere else where would it be?

N: Bartender in heaven would be good. Roving reporter for the Potrero View comes in a close second.

Greg Roensch is a freelance writer and Potrero Hill resident.

Open Space Central to Rebuild Potrero

Roughly 50 people attended an open space workshop for the proposed redevelopment of Potrero Terrace and Annex last month. Rebuild Potrero project director Charmaine Curtis, and project architect Chris Sensenig, facilitated the gathering. Upcoming Rebuild Potrero meetings include a community-building group, 6 p.m., May 6, at the Potrero Hill Neighborhood House; and on open space, 6 p.m. June 9, also at the Nabe. Photograph by Peter Linenthal.

to sell your home?

